FACTS in INDONESIA

Indonesia's textile-related exports are projected to reach $15 billion by 2019 and will employ 3.11 million peoples. The sector's annual production capacity will rise to 1,638 tonnes by then. Indonesia government predicted that textile and textile products exports will grow around 11 per cent annually. The sector is estimated to contribute $12.09 billion to the economy in 2017 and $13.5 billion in 2018. By 2017 end, this sector can absorb up to 2.73 million workers, and increase that to 2.95 million in 2018.

Indonesia has become the industry base for foreign patronage companies which produce special textile products such as geotextile, army uniforms that have been exported to about 30 countries, one of which is for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), and anti-nuclear uniforms which have been exported to Arab Saudi and Malaysia.

Indonesia is ranked the ninth best country for value-added manufacturing in the world, surpassing Russia, Australia and other ASEAN countries, according to statistics from the United Nations Industrial Development Organization.

Indonesia's sportswear industry posted positive growth in 2015 and 2016 amid the global economic slowdown. According to data from the Ministry of Industry, the value of the country's footwear exports in 2015, of which 90% of the total is sports footwear, was up 9.7% to $4.5 billion USD. This helped Indonesia climb to 6th position among top global footwear exporters after China, Italy, Vietnam, Germany and Belgium, with a market share of 3%.

Going forward, Indonesia's domestic sportswear market will gain more importance due to the country's middle-class consumers which are expected to double to 140 million by 2030.
